Introduction

Designed for Key Stage 1&2 pupils, our new Dogs Trust activities are based around a 3-4 minute story that focuses on the arrival of a new dog to one of our Rehoming Centres. Use the story with pupils in either a class or assembly setting to find out which Canine Gang member is arriving at the Centre and why.

Story Activity

Paws for Reflection

Reflection points are placed throughout the story (marked with a 🐾). Use these natural breaks to encourage pupils to think about what is happening and why.

Discussion points

Share Digger's story with pupils and encourage them to reflect upon it, considering their own feelings and responses and comparing similar instances from experience.

Themes to consider include:

Role plays

Use Digger and the other dog tales (from Assembly and the Literacy resources) to create role play scenarios of situations to which pupils need to respond with sympathy, empathy, compassion or friendship. (En1 & NLS Yr3(1) T4, T14; Yr4(1) T6, T13, Yr5(1) T18 PSHE & Citizenship)

Discuss how each character feels and ways in which the problem could be resolved or avoided.

Stories

Pupils can write their own dog tale about Digger and her new friends in the Rehoming Centre. (En2 & NLS Yr3(1) T11, (3) T2,T3,T4, T10, Yr4(1) T10, T13, (3) T8, Yr6(1) T15, T16, T18 (ICT), T11, (3) T14)

Display

Using what they have learnt, pupils can create a school or class display. You can find more information about Dogs Trust by visiting www.dogstrust.org.uk (Links PSHE, Citizenship, ICT, Art & Design, En1, Ma2, Ma4)

Think about the themes that you can use for your display, for example:

- How to be a responsible dog owner
- The things involved in looking after and caring for a dog
- How Digger is feeling about being at a Rehoming Centre
- The stories of the Canine Gang

Times do change

Digger was scared; an hour ago she had been with her family at home. Now she was sitting by the gates of this big building, where her family had left her. She didn't understand why. What was going on? 🐾 1

Suddenly, a strange lady picked her up and carried her into the building. Digger was so frightened that she was shaking, her ears were flat and her tail was between her legs. What was happening to her? 🐾 2

Inside lots of people smiled at her and fussed her. 'This isn't too bad' thought Digger cheering up, 'I like being stroked'. Then the lady led her into another area, Digger couldn't believe her eyes. There were lots of dogs, all different shapes and sizes, all in pens up and down the room.

Digger was put in a pen on her own; when the door closed she started to cry. 'Don't cry sweetheart', said a deep voice, 'No, don't cry' squeaked another. Digger looked down to see a little face peering up at her and a very big face looking down at her. 'My name's Rex' said the big face, 'and this little un is Zippy' he said nodding down at the tiny dog.

Digger stopped sniffing, 'What is this place?' she asked, 'Why am I here?' Rex smiled, 'Why, this is a Dogs Trust Rehoming Centre; dogs live here until we are found new owners to love and look after us'.

Digger was shocked. A Rehoming Centre? New owners? She already had a home and owners, what was going on? Later that day, Rex and Zippy introduced Digger to their friends - Muffin, Rosie and Flick. 'We've all lived here for a while' said Rosie, 'it's quite nice really'. 'But I don't understand' whimpered Digger, 'I have a home already'. 'Well your owners can't have wanted you anymore' said Flick. Muffin prodded Flick with his nose 'That's not a nice thing to say Flick', 'Well, it must be true or she wouldn't be here!' Flick barked back.

Digger lay down and put her paws over her ears. Rosie lay down next to her. 'You poor little thing' she said, 'Just remember that you are not alone, we all look different, but we're all in the same situation'. Digger looked at Rosie, 'Why are you here?' she asked. 🐾 3

Rosie sighed, 'I used to live with a lovely girl called Philippa but one day I got lost at the seaside and was brought here'. 'My owners' barked Rex 'decided they didn't want me, and left me in the middle of a park'. 'I didn't really have owners' said Zippy running up to Digger 'my mum was allowed to have puppies, so there were too many of us to look after and they gave us away'. 'What about you two' called Digger to Flick and Muffin 'where did you come from?'

Flick looked sad, 'I don't remember' he said 'all I know is that someone found me in the road, I was badly hurt so they took me to the vet and fixed me up and then they brought me here'. Muffin gave Flick a big lick to make him feel better, 'I used to live with a family but they hurt me so I ran away!' she barked. 🐾 4

Digger smiled, 'thank you for telling me your stories' she said 'but I still don't understand why my owners have given me away'. Rex frowned 'I have an idea', he whispered 'leave it with me'.

Digger was asleep when someone pawed at her.

'Wha - what?' she shouted jumping up. 'Sssh' said Rosie 'It's only me and Rex, we've found out about your owners'. 'How did you manage that?' quizzed Digger. 'They always talk about the new dogs in the staffroom' said Rex 'It's easy to listen in'.

Digger sat down and hung her head, 'Go on then, tell me' she whispered. 'Okay' said Rosie. 'Apparently, your owners got you when you were a puppy, and Mum and the children were at home all day. But the children are at school now and don't have time to look after you, Mum is working full time, and Dad never really wanted a dog in the first place. They decided that it wasn't fair on you and wanted you to find a home with owners that would care for you properly. 🐾 5

Digger half smiled 'Well at least they cared' she said. 'Humph' growled Rex 'They should have thought harder about getting a dog in the first place, then you wouldn't have had to go through this'. 'Rex has a point' said Rosie softly, 'some people think that owning a dog is easy, they don't realise the time or the money needed to give us a good home'. 🐾 6

'Don't worry though' said a little voice as Zippy appeared from the shadows, 'we'll look after you until you find new owners!'. 'Yes we will' agreed Flick and Muffin as they scampered over, and Digger smiled as she looked up at her five new best friends. 🐾 7
